AUTOMATED OWNERSHIP MAPPING SYSTEM

At first glance . . . this plat book will appear similar to most other plat books commonly found in today's marketplace. On further examination, the user may discover that the text is not handwritten, but is printed professionally. Also, the line work is consistent throughout the book and is mechanically drafted. These are the first indications that there is something special about this publication.

The following discussion is presented to introduce the user to the new field of automated mapping and GIS. Please take several minutes and review this information. You may find that not only is the concept exciting, but the opportunities available with this type of mapping may help you solve special informational or management mapping problems.

THE AUTOMATED MAPPING SYSTEM

Automated mapping systems are a recent development that has developed with the computer graphics industry, particularly the PC computer. The following maps have been prepared by computer and all lines and text are maintained in a computer data file. Also, each map is composed of many separate layers of information. These layers have been combined to present ownership information as clearly as possible. However, a different arrangement of layers can be combined to present new maps for other special uses. For example, the ownership names can be omitted from the map, or the parcel lines can be left off. Also, the scale of the map can be changed or maps can be presented showing different geographic areas.

All data used in the preparation of this book was obtained from the County or Township Assessor's offices. The reproduction of this data is as accurate as possible. The information has then been combined to show each township and ultimately, the complete county. The same information can be segmented in different ways to show other combinations within the county or multiple counties if needed. This provides county and township officials a unique tool to provide accurate base mapping for many different purposes. Also, the graphic information was calibrated to fit the USGS quadrangle system which assures accuracy with adjoining counties and other standard map publications.

Perhaps the greatest value of the automated mapping system is that additional layers of information can be added to the system for very little cost. For example, if agricultural interests in the county have need for soils information combined with ownership information, SCS soils maps can be created simply by digitizing the county's soil records into the database. The same is true for contour information, land use, agricultural uses, flood plains, public lands, and most other types of available information.

In addition to the above information sources, special studies such as bus routes, special use districts, location of special materials, or other personalized information can also be added to a database at very little cost. This information can then be recalled and published in final map form at various scales.

Our staff of professional cartographers and project managers is anxious to explain the benefits of this system and share with you how your special mapping needs can be combined with this data system to provide you a unique graphic representation of your information.

GEOGRAPHIC INFORMATION SYSTEM/GIS

One of the most exciting breakthroughs in graphic and data base technology during the past several years has been the development of GIS system. The GIS systems allows the user to construct a map such as the ownership base map included in this publication and associate non-graphic or tabular information with each parcel. If properly prepared, the graphic and non-graphic databases can then be queried to display answers to numerous questions regarding a geographic area.

For the GIS system to work, it is necessary to define a special area. In our mapping system, this will be the ownership parcel. If this parcel is mapped in such a way that all corners intersect mathematically and all lines are coincident, then the map becomes a series of interconnected polygons. Each polygon can then be identified or tagged and related to a separate data file. Once this process is complete, a special or unique data file can be developed for each parcel. The preparation of this ownership mapping system has been developed using GIS technology and with little additional effort, these maps can become the root document for a county-wide GIS system.

Most urban counties currently developing GIS systems "populate" their database with county-wide data - assessment information, census tract data, demographics, or other county-wide data. It is equally possible to develop GIS applications for very special interests such as real estate listings, agricultural uses, student population, locations of special interest or uses throughout the county, and other activities that may fit a personal, private or public need. Applications of this type of mapping could include the following:

1. Public

- a. Township or county data regarding ownership of parcels.
- b. Assessment information.
- c. Land use.
- d. Flood plain.
- e. Occupancy.
- f. Value.
- g. Zoning.
- h. Parcel size.
- i. Type of use.
- j. Flood plain information.
- k. Other similar available information.

Once this information is placed in the computer database, queries can then be made asking such questions as:

- * Show all parcels that have changed ownership during the past five years.
- * Show all parcels over 80 acres where 50% or more of the land is under cultivation.
- * Prepare a report listing all properties in flood plains.

2. Private Use

This type of mapping system can be used also to develop specialized studies for private or quasi public use. For example, the names and geographic location of organizational members can be presented, special information on family size, occupation or interest can be presented, information on real estate listings, sales, and appraisal information can be developed, or any other special county-wide data that will serve the specific interest of any group or market. This data can be developed privately and locked in such a way that no other user can have access to this information. Special queries can then be developed to service the needs of these groups.

PROCESS FOR USING THIS SYSTEM

The simplest means of using the GIS system is to have our organization input your data and assist you in running special queries or reports, as needed. If the demand for information warrants, the user can acquire the software necessary to operate this system, our technicians will "load" the software and databases in your computer and train you in the use of this system. The costs for the system are relatively inexpensive, however, the GIS system software is fairly complex and difficult to operate. If you or others within the county have interest in learning more about the automated mapping system or GIS programs discussed in this section, representatives of our organization would be extremely pleased to meet with you. Our staff can provide a personal demonstration on how this system can be used or additional written material or video tapes can be provided illustrating these systems in greater detail. If you would like to learn more about this unique mapping system, please contact our representatives at the following address:

Important Facts About Land Descriptions

WHAT IS A LAND DESCRIPTION?

A land description is a description of a tract of land in legally acceptable terms, so as to show exactly where it is located and how many acres it contains.

A SECTION OF LAND — 640 ACRES

The system of the U.S. Land Survey is cartographically represented by lines running east and west and north and south. These lines are six miles apart and in this manner form squares containing 36 square miles known as congressional townships. This system of survey starts from the intersection of a principal meridian and base line.

The numbers starting from each intersection of a base line and a principal meridian, increasing south or north along the meridians are called township numbers, and those going east and west along the base lines are known as range numbers.

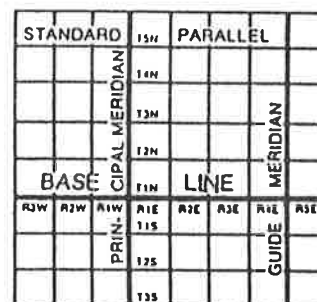

Diagram showing typical division of tract into Townships

Chains	1/4 Mile	1/2 Mile	3/4 Mile	1 Mile
Links	2,000	4,000	6,000	8,000
Rods	80	160	240	320
Feet	1,320	2,640	3,960	5,280

Always on rectangular survey descriptions work from end of description back to the beginning. Example:

1	2	3	4	5	6	7
Town and Range	Sec. Number	1/4 section	1/4 sec. of 1/4 sec.	thence into halves or quarters to beginning
South 165 feet of	S1/2	S1/2	SE1/4	NE1/4	Section 8	Town 7 North Range 7 East
5 Acres	10 Acres	20 Acres	40 Acres	160 Acres	640 Acres

The preferred order in locating quarter sections is counter-clockwise. North East quarter, North West quarter, South West quarter, and South East quarter. If parts of the quarter sections are to be described, the same order should be observed.

In non-rectangular land descriptions, distance is usually described in terms of either feet or rods, (this is especially true in surveying today), and square measure in terms of acres. Such descriptions are called Metes and Bounds descriptions and will be explained in detail later.

In rectangular land descriptions, square measure is again in terms of acres, and the location of the land in such terms N1/2 (north one-half), SE 1/4 (south east one-fourth or quarter, etc. as shown in Figures 2, 3, 4, and 5.
